

“Small Learning Communities” come to the Middle School

It is well-known that students perform better in school when they feel a sense of belonging and form meaningful relationships with their teachers. This is even more factual when applied to the crucial middle school years. To help promote this to all the students of Muhlenberg Middle School, Small Learning Communities (SLCs) were introduced this school year.

SLCs can help bridge an ever-widening gap that spans from a child’s most fundamental needs to their higher-order need to learn. In the midst of this gap are all children’s need for satisfactions such as structure, belonging, responsibility, achievement, and relationships. Small Learning Communities can help provide for these. A SLC is a systemic and collaborative approach to create a school culture in which every student feels a sense of belonging and meaningful relationships with their teachers, as the foundation for optimal personal achievement and academic success.

Generally speaking, every Muhlenberg middle school student is assigned to one of four SLCs in the school: Sojourners or Explorers in 7th Grade, and Discoverers or Voyagers in 8th Grade. Within each grade-level SLC students will get the same education and opportunities as others. Each SLC, however, will have a specific community of teachers who take a new level of accountability over their students to ensure the maximum success for each and every one.

Every student is also assigned to a House that meets twice a cycle. Houses are integral to the SLC concept whereby the largest number of teachers are assigned to the smallest group of students creating a very low teacher to student ratio. In this manner, House Teachers can more closely advocate for each student and ensure their personal success and academic achievement.

The Small Learning Community concept was first introduced to Muhlenberg last school year when a research team of teachers read books, journals, and even visited other schools around southeastern Pennsylvania to witness them first-hand. The team returned very positive by what they observed and enthusiastic to implement the best of what they learned.

A proposal of the SLC concept was made to the rest of the Middle School staff. The benefits for our school and students were very clear and teachers, staff, and administration were ready to make a collaborative commitment toward these organizational changes. From this green-light approval, an SLC Planning Team was created who then worked very hard this past summer to help move the SLC from concept to reality.

The Planning Team devised everything necessary to start the school year smoothly: Names for each SLC to identify with, shaped a revised organizational philosophy of the school, staff and students, and created various internal leadership roles within each SLC. They also helped to create a tight agenda for Common Planning Time to ensure teacher’s valuable meeting time is utilized most efficiently.

The progress of Small Learning Communities will continue to improve as the new SLC Development Team fashions exciting opportunities for all staff and students. With the apparent changes of new construction and remodeling of the physical building, along with the more transparent organizational changes taking place inside, Muhlenberg Middle School is truly a place of, “Excellence in Action.”

Casper named Merit Semi-Finalist

Steven Casper, Class of 2010, was named a National Merit Semi-Finalist in the National Merit Scholarship Competition. Steven is now one of only 16,000 high school students across the country eligible to become a Scholarship Finalist. ## Food Service News

Welcome to the new school year 2009-2010! We are excited about the changes at our Middle School where renovations have transformed the cafeteria into a bright, inviting space. All our cafeterias have new offerings this year and also our standby best sellers, ready to give our students healthy meals for strong bodies and quick minds.

We have processed our Free and Reduced Lunch applications and parents have been notified. If you have not heard from us, please call. Café Prepay is available again this year for parents to monitor their children's account at no cost or to make a deposit into their cafeteria accounts with a debit or credit card at a fee of $2.50 per transaction. The website is www.cafeprepay.com. We will continue to send an envelope home when accounts reach $5 and families will be called with an automated system when accounts are below $2. Cash and checks are also welcome.

Potopa named to national committee

Tim Potopa, a guidance counselor at the high school, has been asked by the National Association of College Admission Counselors to serve on a joint committee with the National Collegiate Athletic Association (NCAA). Mr. Potopa was one of only 14 high school counselors and/or college admissions counselors from across the country asked to serve on the committee.

This first-ever committee will work with the NCAA concerning the Initial Eligibility Clearinghouse. The Clearinghouse is the arm of the NCAA that makes sure that incoming scholarship athletes have certain core courses, grades and SAT/ACT scores to be eligible to participate and receive scholarship money.

Mr. Potopa also served on a panel for the fifth year in a row at Gettysburg College. Held in August, the panel was part of the Pennsylvania Association of College Admissions Counselors (PACAC) annual two-day training for new and mid-level guidance and college admissions counselors.

MS needs books for swap

Later this year the Muhlenberg Middle School will hold a book swap. We will be collecting gently used books that are of high interest to middle school readers throughout the year. Middle school students will be able to donate books and receive discounts to various school events. If you do not have a middle school student, but would like to donate your unused books to the middle school, please drop them off at the middle school office, attention Mrs. Hornberger.

PIAA rule change impacts district playing fields usage

The Pennsylvania Interscholastic Athletic Association held a special meeting the week of July 20, 2009. At this meeting they had voted and approved the following:

Amend ARTICLE XVI, SEASON AND OUT-OF-SEASON RULES AND REGULATIONS, Table III - Schedule of Spring Sports, of the PIAA By-Laws, to move girls' spring soccer to the PIAA-defined fall soccer season, effective July 1, 2010.

Moving girls' soccer to the fall will have many implications for the school district. The most pressing issue will be the safety of our students. There will be a total of eight school sponsored soccer teams potentially trying to play and practice on only one school district field. The field in place will not be able to handle the additional stress. The teams will have a combined total of one hundred thirty two (132) practices and thirty six (36) home games / scrimmages. Off campus community soccer fields will be needed, but the goal is to keep our students on campus as much as possible, eliminate additional busing costs and most importantly provide a safe playing area for our students.

When the current field was built for the 2005 spring season, it was built with the idea of having a separate fall and spring soccer season. This would allow our personnel an opportunity to repair, replant and replace damaged turf. With the PIAA imposed change, the heavy usage that will occur on this field will not allow the district to create this same safe playing environment.

As mentioned, our current field cannot handle the stress of an additional team and program. If a turf field is not installed, conditions would compel the District to re-sod annually. A field without adequate grass cover is a safety hazard. It will either significantly reduce footing and/or create a bog. In each case, the athlete has little control over his footing and therefore becomes particularly susceptible to injury. The poor surface condition is also attributable to a poor subsurface. Our field does not drain very well. To correct it would require moving the existing grass, install a sand/pea-gravel drain field, re-sod, top-dress and re-seed. We estimate a cost of approximately $463,498. Without correction, improper drainage will accelerate wear and tear and prolong the safety hazards.

The school board has asked the administration to research the cost of an artificial turf field. Although initial costs seem high in this economic climate, the long term savings and benefits of a turf field are substantial. Over a ten year period annual maintenance cost would be reduced by approximately $280,000. With a turf field, additional practices and games can be scheduled and the risk of cancellations will greatly decrease. Most importantly our students will have a safe playing area.

Autumn in the Art Room

Drawing is an essential part of any fine art course, and colleges look for students whose portfolios contain many examples of drawing and painting from direct observation. Therefore the high school Fine Art courses in Foundations, Fine Art II, III and Advanced Placement Studio all have plenty of drawing opportunities. Students practice these skills through a varied curriculum, which also includes art history, art criticism and aesthetics. But encouraging young artists to solve problems individually and creatively in order to demonstrate personal artistic growth is perhaps the most important part of the curriculum.

To begin this process this year, High School Fine Art students returning from summer vacation were met with a large, challenging still life which occupied center stage of the Fine Art room. Comprised of broken down, convoluted pieces of cars, vacuum cleaners, bicycles, appliances and Sketch the Skeleton, students could begin honing their drawing skills by finding interesting compositional areas of the set up to draw. The results were amazing and students at all levels met the challenge of The Art Room Still Life with gusto!

In addition to Sketch the Skeleton and company, upper level Fine Art III and AP Studio students had an opportunity this fall to leave their pencils and paintbrushes behind for a few weeks as they took part in an artist-in-residency opportunity. Ms. Patricia Scialo, area photographer, worked with this group of students on 35mm photography. Students were taught how to artistically compose their black and white shots and then were taught the film development and printing processes in the high school dark room. This fascinating mix of art and science is extremely popular with students, and the high school art department is very fortunate to have this wonderful facility to share with students.

Broken down car parts, skeletons wearing straw hats, the smell of oil paint and the click of a camera shutter – these sights, sounds and sensations are all part the High School Fine Art room, a pretty cool place to be!

Muhlenberg High School “Blue Out”

In a ceremony at Muhlenberg High School on Friday, September 11, the students and faculty celebrated the district’s completing its third year of anti-bias and anti-bullying programs and the school’s re-designation as “No Place for Hate.”

A representative from the Anti-Defamation League attended the ceremony and presented the high school with its official designation banner. The high school has earned this distinction by participating in a series of projects that promote respect for differences and challenge hate and bias. The projects are coordinated by the high school Student Council.

On Friday September 11, all students were encouraged to wear blue to school and to the home football game. The “Blue Out” demonstrated that no matter what your race, ethnicity, gender, or economic background, we are proud to be Muhlenberg and to wear Blue. Go Muhlenberg and Go Blue!
